ASSETS AND LIABILITIES NOT KNOWN—THE PUBLISHING COMPANY NOT AFFECTED.

Orange Judd made an assignment yesterday to Benjamin S. Clark, giving nine preferences amounting to $11,306, as follows: Estate of Thomas F. Srewart, Philipsburg, N. J., $2,545, trust funds; estate of Charies W. Judd, Binghamton, N. Y., $5,000, frust funds, partially secured; John Dickerson, $200, money loaned; Robert Carrington, Brooklyn, $600, money loaned; Robert Carrington, Brooklyn, $936 on notes; George Thurber, Passaic, N. J., $650; Sidera Chase, Brooklyn, $742, notes secured by sixty shares of the Sackett Plow & Pulverizer Company; John W. Pratt, Brooklyn, $608, secured by shares of the same company; New York Plough Company, $25, money loaned.

The assignment is by Mr. Judd individually, and, it is said, does not affect the Orange Judd Publishing Company, of No. 751 Broadway. He was succeeded as cresident of the company some time ago by his brother, David W. Judd. Orange Judd was connected with the business for over thirty years, and was widely known throughout the country in connection with The American Agriculturist and other publications. He has always been regarded as a liberal man. In 1870 he gave to Weslevan University $100,000 for the crection of the Orange Jud Hall of Natural Science. He was interested in various enterprises outside of his regular business, and in some of them he lost considerable money. He was largely interested in the Crandall Toy Company, in which, it is said, he sunk about $35,000. He was formerly president of the Sackett Plough & Pulverizer Company, of whose stock he held $100,000. He retired from the presidency a few months ago. He was sangnine in regard to the future of this company; part of his stock has been pledged for loans. Mr. Judd was prostrated by sunstrick about a month ago, and since then he has been unable to attend to business. He had a number of notes out which were about to mature and for which he had not made immediate provision.

Mr. Vail, brought suit for $4,000 against him. Mr. Judd was not able to come down to attend to it until the time to answer was about up. This was on Wednesday. He asked an extension of ten days, expecting in the meantime to make such business arrangements as to effect a settlement which would not have made the assignment necessary, but the creditor was very persistent and exacting and refused to grant the request, although he was given to understand that he would have an opportunity to secure his claim in full. This forced the assignment. Mr. Judd is not well enough to look into his affairs at present and will have to remain in the country. Mr. Gwiliem could not give the amount of the hisblities, which were chiefly in discounted notes were. Mr. Judd had a house in Flusting in which there was some equity, and a portion of his stock in the Sackett Plough and Pulverizer Company was hypothecated.

David W. Judd, president of the Orange Judd Company, made the following statement to a Trib. UNS recorter regarding his brother's assignment:
"Orange Judd has not been connected with this company for some time, and only nominally for several years. In 1878 the control and management of the concern passed into the hands of the present managers. Orange Judd's financial embarresments, watch bave culminated in his assignment, date back several years ago, when he gave $100,000 for the establishment of a Hall of Natural Science at Wesieyan University, and contributed largely to the building of courches and Sundayschools and to other philanthropic enterprises. He was then largely engaged in real-estate operations and railroad enterprises. In connection with Conrad Poppenhusen, he projected the network of railroads which now cover Long Island. Mr. Poppenhusen became involved, if I reacaber rightly, to the extent of several milions, and was compelled to succumb. The heavy depreciation of Mr. Juda's real estate continued to cripple him, and after the extent of several militons, and was compelled to succumb. The heavy depreciation of Mr. Juda's real esta e continued to cripple him, and after going out of the publishing business he entered into new enterprises, with the expectation of being able to realize sufficiently to meet obligations which he had incurred by lavissity giving in prosperous times. I have seen little of him for some time pass, and do not know the amount of his assets and liconities."

C. A. Runkle, the counsel for the Orange Juda Company, said that the assignment of Mr. Juda could in he wise affect the standing or the credit of the company.

Ga., have su-pended payment on account of trouble among the partners, and Wilson Godfrey, of No. 82 Wall-st, has been appointed receiver at the request of the partners and creditors, to prevent the property from being querificed. The habilities are reported at about $100.000 and it is said that the assets will exceed toatamount. The firm has been in business eighteen years, had over $100.000 capital myested, and has timber lands and a mill at Stockton, Ga. The jumor partners, C. Sloat and Mr. Cromwell, it is said have disagreed with Mr. Bussell, and the disagreement culminated in the receiver-hip. Mr. Godfrey, the receiver, said vesterday that lumes were bard with the firm, differences between the partners followed, and he had been requested to come in as a receiver to protect the property in the interests of the creditors. The firm, he thought, had ample assets if properly managed to pay all the indebtedness in full. The liabilities would not exceed $100,000, a large part of which was of long standing, being purchase money. It was the intention to keep the business running.

ACTING IN LEAGUE WITH BURGLARS.

Jacob Vix, a cashier in Holtz & Hoennecke's restaurant at 349 Broadway, was a prisoner at Police Headquarters yesterday, charged with completity in a burelary which was committed on Sunday, December 3, 1882. The robbers entered the restaurant before daylight, by means of a false key, and they left the place at 10 a.m., shortly before the arrival of persons who had been employed to clean the floors and tables. They had broken open a safe they left the place at 10 a.m., shortly before the arrival of persons who had been employed to clean the floors and tables. They had broken open a safe and had taken money and checks to the amount of nearly $500. Detective Sergeants Dolan and Heidelberg suspected Vix at the time, believing that the burglars had received assistance from some person employed in the building. They found that Vix spent his evenings at low resorts in company with "Red" Farrell, an ex-convet, and other persons known to be thieves. Farrell was arrested about three months ago for a robbery and imprisoned for three years. Vix afterward went to board with Farrell's mother and si-ter in Mulberry-st.

Detective Sergeant Heidelberg went to Sing Sing on Tursday and saw Farrell. He made the convict believe that Vix had been arrested and had made statements about the robbery at No. 349 Broadway. Farrell then confessed that he and a man named Robinson, also a prisener, had committed the robbery. He said that Vix had furnished a key, from which a duplicate was made, and had been acquainted with all the operations of his confederates, although he was absent from the restaurant when the safe was rifled. The burglars paid him $1.22 as his share of the plunder. Vix made a confession of his guilt.

John Duffy, a bricktayer, living at No. 366 West Twenty-sixth-st., was found sitting on the steps of the elevated railroad station at One-bundred-andtwenty-ninth-st. and Third-ave, yest-rday, weak from the loss of blood that was flowing from wounds in his neck. Duffy said that he had boarded an up train a short time before, intending to visit friends in Yorkville. DISCOMFITING THE TITLE COMPANY.

The operations of the New-York Title Company the Register's Office were interrupted yesterday at the Register's Office were interrupted yesterday. When, at an early nour, the young men who have been employed by the Title Company for some time made applications for the different books containing the records, Register Docharty, who had ascertained positively that the young men were agents of the company, issued orders to his pustodian to the effect that he should refuse to allow them the use of more than one book at a time, low them the use of more than one book at a time.

TELEGRAPH-MEN DISSATISFIED.

HOW THE COMPANY'S ORDER IS REGARDED. A CONCESSION THAT DOES NOT CONCEDE-PROS-PECTS OF A STRIKE.

The order issued by the Western Union Telegraph Company rearranging the hours of laber does not meet with the iniqualitied approval of the operators. "Why, it's no concession at all," said one of them to a Tribune reporter. "The day men now only work nine hours a day. The only difference it makes to them is in the matter of Sunday work, and as we are only required to work one Sunday in eight, that part of it makes very little difference. So far as the night men are concerned, their position is absolutely unchanged. The talk about its being a concession is nonsense."

A prominent member of the Brotherhood of Telegraph Operators said in answer to inquiries: "I do not think there will be any strike. The operators undoubtedly have grievances, and a presentation of their grievances will be made to the companies. The entire matter is in the hands of a committee of the Brotherhood, and outside of the members of that committee nobody knows what demands will be made. I can say this much: that they will be so just and reasonable that a refusal will bardly be possible without the companies putting themselves in a very bad light before the public. We do not expect to demand our rights in an oftensive way, but will prepare a plain statement of the facts of the ease and submit it. In case of a refusal there might be a strike, but of that I can say nothing positive save that the whole matter is in the Lands of the committee. The committee is not in Now-York just at present, but will be here very likely next week, when the demand ou a strike I regard as premature, to say the least, Our principal grievances are the Sunday work for night men, and the action of the committee is not in Now-York just at present, but will be here very likely next week, when the demand ou strike I regard as premature, to say the least, Our principal grievances are the Sunday work for night men, and the inequality of pay between the men and women operators. The arerage pay of men is now from $650 to $70 a month, while the women's average is little if $65 to $70 a month, while the women's average is little if any, above $40. Work that a man would get $90 for, a woman does for $50. There are some women operators in the Western Union service who do not receive more than $25 a month. The natural result of this, if continued, will be that either the men will have to leave the business or their pay will be scaled down to that of the women. Their idea is to have the equalizing process carried out now and have the women paid the same as the men. I don't know whether or not the committee will take up the question of hours or of higher pay for the men, but it is possible. The order of the Westtake up the question of nours of angler pay the men, but it is possible. The order of the Western Union Company is a sort o Cerberus that doesn't amount to anything and will not have the least effect on the work of the Brotherhood. S'tould we be forced to strike I dou't think the strike will we be forced to strike I don't think the strike will be of long duration. A great majority of the op-erators throughout the United States and Camada are members of the order, and the business of the country would be at a complete standstill; and as we intend to be moderate, public epinion would soon force the company to give in. However, if we are treated as skilled workmen should be treated. I regard the prospects of a strike as very remote."

treated, I regard the prospects of 4 strike as very remote."

"Concession be hanged!" said as operator in charge of an up-town branch. "Thut order don't amount to a hill of beans. It strikes me that the company is trying to play the society, but it has got to give us something more solid than that before we get through with it. We want equal pay for equal work right straight through. I have to work here for $65 a month and do more work than a man at the main office would for $85 or $90. That may be all right, but I do not think it is, and neither does the Brotherhood. I think the newspapers will have something to write about before this time next week, unless the company issues a better order than that one and makes some arrangement about pay too."

DANGER IN PANDLING BUFFALO HIDES. THE DEATH OF SAMUEL M'WILLIAMS-POISON AB-SORBED THROUGH A PIMPLE.

The DEATH OF SAMUEL M'WILLIAMS—POISON ABSORBED THROUGH A PIMPLE.

The death of Samuel McWilliams, who was poisoned while banding East India buffalo-hides for G. B. Horton & Co., of No. 95 Gold-st., has caused no litile excitement among the leather dealers in the "Swamp." The way in which he was poisoned is still a matter of doubt; the only theory that has been advanced that has met with any degree of favor by his physician and men in the trade is that the buflato died from murrain and that the curing of the hide with arsenic had created a potsonous virus, with which McWilliams was inoculated. The hides were received from Caicuita on July 2 and the bales were untied and the skins stacked. McWilliams, and a fellow-workman named Michael Donovan perspired profusily and rubbed the moisture from their faces with their bare bands. Each of the men had a pimple on the left side of his face, and it is thought that their bood became noisoned by that means. Donovan became very ill, but finally recovered. McWilliams experienced no trouble from the poisoning until Friday, when his face, neck and breast began to swell. He continued to suffer until Sinday, when he died.

A Tribune reporter called on Mr. Horton yesterday, and was informed that the hides which McWilliams had hadded were cured with a wash called "sheenam," composed of lime, mud and saltpetre, and that as there was nothing poisonous about the preparation the man must have been poisoned in some other way. There were hides shipped to this market which were treated with arsenic to keep the worms out of them but they formed only one-twentieth which were treated with arsenic to keep the worms out of them but they formed only one-twentieth as there was nothing personned in some other way. There were hides shipped to this market which were treated with arsenic to keep the worms out of them, but they formed only one-twentieth part of the importations. Mr. Horton thought that the man might have been noculaized by the animal virus with some disease that the animal had died of, but he thought it was improbable. McWilhams had been employed by him since 1881 and had handled hundreds of hides. He was a strong, healthy man and had never comptained of being affected by the skins before. Mr. Horton said that he had never heard of a similar case.

A dealer in hides in Ferry-st, said that he had never heard of a similar case.

A dealer in hides in Ferry-st, said that he had been poisoned by the hides, but that the cases were not frequent. The man was poisoned by the wash," he continued, "which the Calciutta packers use on hides. In the warm weather, a smail brown worm breeds in the hides and, if some precaution is not taken, destroys them. Arsenic is the chemical that is generally used. Should a handler have a cut or an abrasion of the skin or any exposed part of his body, he becomes poisoned. The most dangerous hides of all that come to this city are those from South America; they are cured with the Buenos Ayres wash. A powder called antiputrian is also used, but it is quite harmless. I do not think that any hide curied with 'sheenam' could poison a handler unless the animal had died from marrain or horn distemper. The men are generally careless in handling foreign with 'sheenam' could poison a handler unless the animal had died from murrain or horn distamper. SOME ASSISTED IMMIGRANTS.

The steamer Labrador, of the French line, landed 345 immigrants at Castle Garden yesterday. Among them were a woman and two children and a man sent out by the Swiss authorities. The woman, Marie Hechendorn, who was a native of Basie, said that she had been occasionally helped by the authorities there but had never been in the workhouse. Her husband, a lamplighter, living at No. 438 West Fortieth-st., called at the Garden and took her and her children away. The other assisted immigrant of the Labrador was Samuel Gebrig, a native of the Commune of Ammerswyl, in the Canton of Aargau, Switzerland. The authorities of the Commune gave him his passage money and 30 francs. He was an able-bedied man and he has a cousin in Akron, O. He was not detained. Another immigrant by the Labrador was Catharine Bertucci, an Italian woman. She had $3.75, and wanted to go to her sister Pasqualina in Boston. She had the an Italian woman. MR. CAMPBELL NOT TO RESIGN.

HIS NEED OF A PROLONGED REST. LIKELIHOOD THAT HE WILL TAKE A THREE MONTHS' VACATION.

A sensational rumor current yesterday that Controller Campbell intended to resign was promptly denied by him. "I have no intention of resigning," he said in answer to inquiries by a Tribunk reporter. "My brother, who is a physician, advises me to take a vacation for the benefit of my health, but I have come to no decision on the matter." Another rumor that the Controller had asked for the resignation of Deputy-Controller Storrs was also pronounced untrue. MONTHS' VACATION.

Mr. Campbell has been a department head since 1876. During this time, with the exception of a few days, he has not been absent from his post of duty except on account of sickness. The heads of all the other departments, of a few days, he has not been absent from his post of duty except on account of sickness. The heads of all the other departments, almost without exception, are absent a good part of the time during the hot weather, some making trips to Europe and others spending their time at various watering-places. Mr. Campbell has been in the habit of spending more time in his office than any other department head. This close attention to business had somewhat impaired his health when the coupon frands were discovered. The loss to the city by those frauds was the first of the kind that ever occurred under Mr. Campbell, and was the cause of deep regret on his part. The serious effect on his health has been so evident to his friends that they insist on his taking a vacation of several weeks, with a trip to Europe.

Under the charter, Mr. Campbell can designate his deputy to act as Controller for three months, and he has the power to remove or appoint a deputy at will. It is the general belief about the City Hall that the Controller will take a three months' vacation. Some members of the County Democracy are trying to get him to designate ex-Controller Andrew H. Green as his deputy during his absence. While the Controller can do this without the consent of the Mayor, as a matter of courtesy he would not do so; and it is rumored that the Mayor is averse to Mr. Green being designated to fill the place. It was the system of auditing coupons instituted by Mr. Green when Controller that made possible the Carroll frauds, and there is evidence now, according to the Commissioners of Accounts, that the frauds began as tar back as 1876, and it is believed that they will even reach into Mr. Green's term of office as Controller. The decased clerk Carroll, who committed the frauds, was appointed to office by Mr. Green when Controller that made possible the Carroll frauds, and there is evidence now, according to the Commissioners of Commissioner of the Aqueduct Commission. His deputy could not act as an Aqueduct Commissioner of the Aqueduct uty in case of his making a trip to Europe,

ORANGEMEN'S OBSERVANCES. A STEAMER PARTY NOT ALLOWED TO LAND-DIS-TURBANCE AT PATERSON.

TURBANCE AT PATERSON.

The tenth annual excursion and picnic of the Orangemen of New-York and Brooklyn took place yesterday. Mount Pleasant Grove, on the Hudson, was the place selected by the admirers of Whiliam of Orange to celebrate the 193d anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. The steamer Crystal Stream and the barges Walter Sands and Hasket at an early hour took on board numbers of men, women and children, laden with provision baskets, at Jewell's Wharf, Brooklyn, and at the pier by Iwenty-first-st., North River. The utmost good temper prevailed both among the Orangemen and the spectators of the gathering. A few more pleasure-seekers were taken on board at Harlem. The boats were gayly decked with the flags of all nations, the green flag of Erin alone being conspicuous by its absence. A band led by Professor Loveli discoursed sweet music; but the air "Orange and Bine," and other party times, took up an inordinate share of the programme. The Orangemen were almost exclusively Scotch-Irisa, and the excruenting accent of Beliasi prevailed, and with dancing, singing and drinking the large assemblage amused itself on its way up the river.

most excensively socion-iris, and the extractions accent of Beliast prevailed, and with dancing, singing and drinking the large assemblage amused itself on its way up the river.

When the party reached its destination a messenger, in a small rowing boat, boarded the Crystal Stream with the nuwelcome intelligence that the visitors could not be permitted to land. The disappointed people were, therefore, towed a tew miles further up the river and instead of eating carefully prepared dinners off snow-white cloths spread beneath trees, they had to manage as best they could huddled closely together on the decks. To increase the disappointment of some persons, only temperance drinks were obtainable on board. But even these misfortunes could not allogether damp the ardor of the pleasure-seekers and they bowed to the mevitable and enjoyed the band, the inger ministrels and the other accessories with the greater zest, returning to their homes in peace and content.

At Market-st. a hackman drove his vehicle into the line. The marshals remonstrated and threatened him with their swords, but the hackman persisted. Several Orangemen then struck the backman's horses with their swords. Persons on the sidewall interfered, and an incipient rot evsued. The disturbance was quelled by the arrival of two squads of police that were just marching out for hight duty. Several persons were slightly hurt. Four of the most belligerent, including the grand marshal of the procession, were arrested. At one time it seemed as if a serious riot was imminent, which the opportune arrival of the police alone prevented.

A CUBAN SWINDLER CAUGHT AT LAST. A CUBAN SWINDLER CAUGHT AT LAST.

A Cuban has for some years been conducting a successful swindling operation among Spanish and Cuban merchants, who have been liberal in contributing money toward what were represented as being worthy objects of charity. Recently, however, they ascertained that they had been swindled. This swindler, who was described as a melancholy-looking individual, about thity-five years of age, shim of build and about five feet nine inches in height, was captured on Wednesday by Detective James Oates at the office of A. Jex. No. 58 Broad-st. He was taken to the Oak Street Police Station where he gave the name of William Penalver, age thirty-five, living in South Third-st., Williamsburg. Among other arricles found in his possession were a number of large eave.opes which bore the names and addresses of well-to-do Spanish residents of this city, and a pair of handcoffs.

He had also on several occasions secured from the Consul passage tickets to Cuba on his declaration that they were to be used by peamliess Spaniards anxious to return to their native place, but these tickets it was now known had been sold by the prisoner at a reduced rate.

Justice Smith committed the accused man until to-day, when an examination will be held.

Detective Sergeants King, Lyon, McNaught, Radford and Rogers were sent by Inspector Byrnes to Jersey City yesterday to identify Fitzler. When the officers appeared at his bedside he immediately recognized King and Lyon and called them by name. The detectives recognized the thief as an er-convict who has been known in prion and at Police Headquarters as Frederick Braun, alias "Dutch Fritz." He has been arrested several times in this city, and his picture is in the Rogues' Gallery. When he was locked up at Police Headquarters about three years ago, on a charge of stealing a trunk, Detective King called attention to his murderons cast of features and said: "That man will kill some one yet, or will die in his boots."

Shortly before 11 o'clock Fitzler lapsed into unconsciousness, Kentucky Correspondence Philadelphia Times.

Though now a staid member of the Presbyterian Church and can be seen in his pew every Sunday, with fine-looking this on one side and his tat, buxon wife on the other. Morrow has not always been a pink of propriety, by any means. He was the wildest boy at college. He seemed irrepressible and mischie oozed out of him as naturally as sweat from a Louisiana plantation negro. He tells a good poke on himself. One night walle at college he and a number of his classmates concluded to go to the house of a poor old man out in the suburbs of Danville and rob his hen-roost for fun. When they arrived at the place the door was locked, and as Tom was the smallest one of the boys he volunteered to crawl through the little open window and hand out the chickens. The plan worked like a charm and soon all of the fowls had been transferred from their roosts to the outside with the exception of a veteran turkey-cock. In his efforts to remove this hero of a hundred barn-yard batties the bird set up such a flaipling of his wings and gobbling that the old man and his wife woke up and came out to see what was the matter at the hen-roost. Tom's companions ingloriously fled, leaving him to get out of the dilemma the best way he could. It was too late to attempt to get out the window without being seen. Suddenly a way of escape presented itself. Quickly springing up on the roost, he had hardly drawn his coat-tails close around him and crouccaed down on the pole when the old woman appeared, carrying a light and accompanied by ter husband, who was armed with a formidable-looking film-lock misket. He soon discovered the loss of the chickens, but after looking fixed-iy at the dark object up on the roost turned to his wife and said: "Well, ole woman, they got all the chickens, but, thank goodness, they left the gobbler."

TARIFF AND ANTI-TARIFF REPUBLICAN PAPERS

From The Saratoga Sentinel Mr. Lowell once wanted to know "What is so rare as a day in Jane!" We can tell him. A Democrat who knows how his party stands now, or is going to stand next year on the tariff question, is a good deal ra or than any June day that ever dawned.—New-York

Weil, according to our observations, there is about as Well, according to our observations, there is about as much difference between Republicans as between Democrats on the subject of the tariff, for while This Trimes is outspoken in favor of a lariff, the Times and Evening Post, of New-York, Albany Evening Journal and several other Republican organs are as outspoken against a tariff as any Democrat who can be named. In fact the principal subject upon which all Republicans are fully agreed is that it would be unsafe for their party to give up its hold on the General Government, even if the grossest fraud had to be used, as in 1876, to cheat a Democrat out of his election. There is another matter that they are nearly as well agreed upon, and that is that no Republican shall be punished for stealing from the Government, and if one is caught so that a prosecution becomes necessary, the officials in charge will spin out the trial until the jury will acquit in disgust.
